DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 107-128 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter, which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. Attention is directed to the decision in University of Rochester v. G.D. Searle & Co. 68 USPQ2D 1424 (Fed. Cir. 2004) at 1428:

To satisfy the written-description requirement, the specification must describe every element of the claimed invention in sufficient detail so that one of ordinary skill in the art would recognize that the inventor possessed the claimed invention at the time of filing. Vas-Cath, 935 F.3d at 1563; see also Lockwood v. American Airlines, Inc., 107 F.3d 1565, 1572 [41 USPQ2d 1961] (Fed. Cir. 1997) (patent specification must describe an invention and do so in sufficient detail that one skilled in the art can clearly conclude that “the inventor invented the claimed invention”); In re Gosteli, 872 F.2d 1008, 1012 [10 USPQ2d 1614] (Fed. Cir. 1989) (“the description must clearly allow persons of ordinary skill in the art to recognize that [the inventor] invented what is claimed”). Thus, an applicant complies with the written-description requirement “by describing the invention, with all its claimed limitations, not that which makes it obvious,” and by using “such descriptive means as words, structures, figures, diagrams, formulas, etc., that set forth the claimed invention.” Lockwood, 107 F.3d at 1572.

3. It is noted with particularity that all of the claims under consideration are newly added and that each of the four independent claims, claims 107, 111, 115, and 119, recite a new limitation that the oligonucleotide used to hybridize to the test sample nucleic acid is to range from “about 17 to 28 nucleotides in length.”

Art Unit: 1634

A review of the original disclosure, including the original claims, fails to find support for where applicant contemplated using oligonucleotides that ranged from "about 17 to 28 nucleotides in length" in the instantly claimed method. At page 23 of the response received 11 August 2005, applicant's representative directs attention to Tables 4-8 of the disclosure as providing support for this newly recited range.

4. It is noted with particularity that the method of claims 1-7-120, 122-124, and 126-128 do not call for one to conduct any amplification step. In contrast, the "oligonucleotides" recited in Tables 4-8 are all primers being used in an amplification method. Accordingly, the recitation of primers does not provide adequate written support for a range of oligonucleotides that are to be used in a classical hybridization assay. And even if the claims were amended so to recite such a limitation, the non-functionality of the primers disclosed in Tables 4-7 does not support the position being proffered that these very examples are demonstrative of what applicant intends one to use in the claimed method.

5. To the extent that claims 121 and 125 do recite conducting polymerase chain reaction, a cursory review of Tables 4-7 shows that virtually none of the primers yielded an amplicon of the correct size. Furthermore, the targets being amplified in Table 8 are not the same as that recited in the four independent claims. Accordingly, Table 8 is not considered to provide support for the newly added limitation. Accordingly, the newly added limitations are deemed to constitute new matter.

6. For the above reasons, and in the absence of convincing evidence to the contrary, claims 107-128 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement.

Conclusion

7. Objections and/or rejections which appeared in the prior Office action and which have not been repeated hereinabove have been withdrawn.
8. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).
9. A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
